Art. 2

Admission Requirements

It is possible to participate to the doctoral courses, with no citizenship limitation, whoever possesses, by the date of last submission, the qualification indicated in the attached appendices (A-I) for every doctoral course.

It is possible to participate also for those who will submit the application and that will obtain the qualification by the end of the doctoral courses registration deadline, under penalty of invalidation to be admitted to the doctoral courses. In this case, admission will be given “with reserve” and the candidates that will result as winners will have to prove, under penalty of exclusion, that they possess the qualification through self-certification.

The administration can, in any moment, with a measure motivated by the Dean, exclude from the selection any of the provided requirements.

The candidates that possess an international university qualification have to possess a second level academic qualification (according to the Bologna Process) or a Master Degree that gives access to the doctoral courses in the country of origin and that has been released from an officially recognised academic institution:

- The candidates who already possess equipollence of their title released by the Italian University must attach to the application the relative self-certification (which indicates the extremes of the provision).
- Eligibility of the foreign qualification that instead hasn't already been declared equivalent to the degree. This then is verified from a judging commission in accordance to the actual Italian legislation and in the country where the qualification has been issued and basing on the treaties and international agreements on subjects regarding title recognition for the continuance of the studies. In particular, to be recognised, the candidates need to attach to the on-line application every document, which can be regarded as useful to the judgement of the eligibility, in particular the degree certificate and the list of the exams taken and the study plan. The on-line application compilation will implicate an implicit request to a verification of the eligibility of the title obtained in a foreign country.

The foreign candidates should attach to the on-line application a copy of the qualification, translated in English, French, Spanish or German and if available a "local certificate of equivalence of qualification".

The candidates that possess a qualification obtained in a foreign university, if winners of the selection, should attach the "local certificate of equivalence of qualification" and a certificate relative to the name of exams and marks, translated and legalized by the diplomatic representations or Italian consular from the institution's country that has issued it. The local certificate of qualification needs to certify that the possessed qualification is valid in the country of attainment for the doctoral course enrolment.
